Pepco Fuel Adjustment Subject of Discussion

County and Greenbelt city legislators among others, met recently with a West Virginia legislative staff member to determine whether the West Virginia approach to keeping electric rates down would be applicable to Maryland.

The West Virginia legislature recently withdrew from its Public Service Commission authority to permit the automatic pass-through of fuel costs on electric utility bills as the price of fuel escalates. The legislature found that this automatic fuel adjustment charge was subject to being abused on at least two counts.

First, because it was automatic, there was no incentive for the utility company to buy fuel at the lowest possible cost. As a matter of fact, there was disincentive to do so. Their profits were increased as they purchased fuel at higher prices. Second, charges unrelated to, or at best tangentially related to, fuel costs were included in what the utilities were able to pass through without their being scrutinized by any regulatory body.

Norman Kilpatrick, a former Greenbelter and now a research analyst for the West Virginia legislature, told the group that the Maryland practice is to include even more unrelated or tangentially related charges than was done in West Virginia before the practice was prohibited.

Maryland law permits the pass-through at the discretion of the Public Service Commission and subject to the inclusion of such charges as the PSC sees fit.

In addition to West Virginia, the Florida and Vermont legislatures have also denied to utilities the opportunity to pass along their increased fuel costs automatically.

Attending the meeting, which took place at the home of Leo Gerton, were Gerard Devlin, a member of the General Assembly representing the Greenbelt area, Greenbelt council members Gil Weidenfeld, Richard Castaldi, Charles Schwan, and Thomas White, city council candidate Jack Queen, and Jerry Neumaier and Ben Rosenzweig.

Apollo - Soyuz Puts Greenbelt on Map

Have you noticed something different about the local postmark on your letters?

Apollo-Soyuz
Peaceful Uses of Outer Space

This slogan has appeared on the local postmark since the date of the launch of the Apollo-Soyuz mission on July 15, and will continue to be used until Oct. 30.

This is the only die hub of its type in the world and it is in Greenbelt, Md. Since the launch, the Greenbelt Post Office has received requests from all over the world for this slogan to be placed on letters.

Pedro Sarmiento, president of the Goddard Stamp Club, helped make this event possible.

In addition, a display of Apollo-Soyuz materials is in the case just inside the door at the local library.

Council Receives Proposal To Make Parkway One-Way

by Al Skolnik

At its Monday, August 11 meeting, city council received a proposal for making Parkway a one-way street and instituting angular or perpendicular parking. The proposal was sent to the city's Advisory Planning Board for comments.

The proposal was made by the city staff after a Parkway resident, John MacDonald, expressed concern that the flow of traffic along Parkway was creating a hazardous condition for children.

The flow of one-way traffic could be in either direction. An argument for routing the traffic from the intersection opposite 58 Crescent to the intersection opposite the Community Church is that this would eliminate the hazardous exiting of Parkway traffic onto Crescent near 58 Crescent where there is a blind curve. Another argument is that the food trucks serving Co-op move in and out in that direction. An argument for moving traffic the other way is that it would facilitate fire trucks coming from the fire house to the center.

The city staff provided council with a list of pros and cons for the proposal.

Pro Arguments

The major argument in favor of the proposal is that it would provide an additional 10 to 22 parking spaces in an area where there is a shortage of parking space. Angular or perpendicular parking would be permitted on just one side - the northeast (even numbered street address) side. By so doing, there would be improved vision along the side of the street where all the driveway entrances are located and where most of the children are reported to live. By making Parkway a one-way street, the volume of traffic on the road would be reduced.

Con Arguments

A major disadvantage is that cars backing out of angle or perpendicular parking spaces cause hazards to moving vehicles and have poorer sight vision than vehicles that are parallel parking. Pedestrians crossing the street may also be more difficult to see. One-way traffic may provide some inconveniences to persons going to and from the center who live west of Hillside Road.

Drainage Problem

The council heard a desperate plea from a Lakewood resident, Joan Daniels of 4 Orange court, and her neighbors for help in solving a drainage and flooding problem caused by a natural spring situated on the hill overlooking Orange Court. When the project was built 17 years ago the builder controlled the problem by channeling the flow through a pipe into an existing storm drain. Apparently now, the flow from the spring has shifted direction and emerged elsewhere, thus creating swamp-like conditions.

Mrs. Daniels said that besides creating smelly, mosquito-breeding, and slimy back-yards, the situation is now causing mass erosion and slides. She recognized that the city was not responsible for the spring, but she noted that the eroding ground was affecting the sidewalks and streets.

City manager James K. Giese said that the city has already made arrangements with the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to look at the problem, though WSSC officials say that their responsibility does not encompass handling of springs.

Council suggested that Giese seek technical assistance from WSSC and other agencies such as the Soil Conservation Service. As Mayor Richard Pilski put it, "Once we know what has to be done, we can look at the financing problems."

Councilman Richard Castaldi asked that the city review its responsibility in the matter and determine whether the special assessments route might be used to finance costs. There was also some question whether the spring was on private property or on county property (the buffer strip between the Boxwood and Lakewood projects is county owned).

Questionnaire

Council approved a questionnaire for city voters to complete at the polling places in September. The questions will concentrate on the quality of city services, housing for the elderly, transportation needs and policies, and a bond issue.

Bikeways

Council expressed concern about three aspects of the interim report presented by city staff on bikeways. These were: (1) use of inner sidewalks running through GHI project for bicycles; (2) suggested use of crushed stone for bikeways; and (3) failure to include provisions for bikeways along Crescent Road. Giese said that the final report is awaiting receipt of data from outside agencies and the formulation of cost estimates.

Other Matters

The council approved an appropriation of $200 to the Greenbelt Bicentennial Committee for use in community promotion such as contests, prize money, etc.

Council renewed the second year of three-year policies covering workmen's compensation, comprehensive general liability and automobile insurance with A. R. Keir, Inc. Giese said that the premium changes for the second year were justifiable.

County Council Overrides Examiner on Day-Care Center at Greenbriar

by Elaine Skolnik

The Prince Georges County Council, sitting as the District Council on August 4, gave preliminary approval to a special exception and parking modification for the proposed day care center in the Greenbriar Community Building. The council will take final action on the matter after a resolution of facts and findings justifying the granting of the application, as required by law, is prepared by the county's Office of Law.

The District Council heard the case on appeal after the county's zoning hearing examiner denied the request for a special exception on June 20 (city of Greenbelt and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission had recommended approval.) The applicant, Campus Center for Early Learning, had asked for a special modification of the off-street parking requirement of 12 additional parking spaces for 70 children. (The code provides that for every 6 children, 1 parking space must be provided). Twenty-nine spaces are already located adjacent to the recreation building but these spaces were provided to satisfy the zoning ordinance requirements generated by the residential units of the Greenbriar project.

The District Council is requiring that the resolution incorporate the conditions of the city of Greenbelt (1) all loading and unloading of children take place in the parking lot adjacent to the building and (2) no green space be converted for parking to support the school. Additionally, the council limited enrollment to 70 children and directed that the school work out a satisfactory traffic pattern with the Greenbelt police department.

The Campus Center for Early Learning, which hopes to open in early September, is a non-profit school affiliated with Prince Georges Community College. The facility was designed as part of the community building and has been equipped since the Greenbriar Condominium development opened. Located on the first level of Greenbriar Community Building, the center will serve children ages 2½ to 5 years. Full (7 a.m. to 6 p.m.) and half-day (9 to 11:30 a.m.) sessions are offered.

A Correction

To the Editor:

The biography that appeared in last week's News Review claimed too much for me. It credited me with "having been chairman of the Advisory Planning Board (1959-60) . . ." It should have read that I was "chairman, Advisory Committee to city council on planning (1959-60) . . ." The committee (Sam Ashelman, Lewis Bernstein, Paul Campbell, Hans Jorgensen, Charles McDonald, Isadore Parker, Edgar Smith, Rex Tugwell and I) was assigned two duties by city council: (1) to advise if a permanent recommendatory planning body should be established, and (2) if one were to be set up, what its duties should be. The committee did recommend that a permanent advisory body (Advisory Planning Board) be created, and made further recommendations concerning size and duties of the body. Council saw fit to accept the committee's recommendations.

CARES Group Requests Donations of Materials

Donations are needed for the Job Corporation sponsored by Greenbelt CARES Youth Services Bureau. Scraps of fabric, lace or other edging, thread and needles are items needed for current projects. Other items that can be used are scraps of wood, molds of all types, ironing board, iron and a portable sewing machine.

The Job Corporation was initiated to provide spending money for youth between the ages of 10 and 14 who are too young to obtain work permits for employment on a part-time basis. All local youth are eligible to participate in the Job Corporation. Work projects are held in the Youth Services Bureau office and have included bicycle repairs, candlemaking, gift wrapping typing and mimeographing for the public and the selling of UNICEF materials. Currently there are two groups of youth involved in making Bicentennial dolls. As projects are completed, items are sold to the public. The proceeds from the sale of these items are divided among the youth involved in the various projects.

Through the generosity of area residents most of the materials needed for the projects to date have been donated. These donations have allowed the youths to earn more money since no expenses need to be taken out for the purchase of materials. Anyone wishing to donate items should contact Nancy Spong at 345-3456 or bring them to the Youth Services Bureau office at 133 Centerway (above the movie theater).

GRAVE MUSINGS - or a View of the Cemetery

by Steve Gunn

The day that I am sent to the cemetery dawns overcast and turns sunny and muggy in the afternoon.

To get to the graveyard, the official Greenbelt cemetery, you turn left at an unmarked road just past where Kenilworth Ave. becomes Edmonston Rd. The unmarked lane is newly paved and runs past beer bottles and Gino's bags, past water and chemically corroded land, past salt storage piles and past a dunce-cap-like structure that will ultimately house the salt.

After the pavement stops, a 100 yard walk up a gravel rutted road brings you to the cemetery. The graveyard seems about 100 yards long and about 25 yards wide surrounded by both a chain-link fence and a single chain fence.

The graveyard is flat and divided into eight plots. Some of the plots are empty. Two have two flat markers. There are six markers and about fifty bodies in the cemetery.

Many of the bodies were dug up from local family cemeteries when Greenbelt was first built. Some had markers, but recently these markers have been put in storage to prevent vandalism.

A man was buried there just a few weeks ago, apparently the first since 1961. A five inch shrub guards his unmarked grave. His funeral was a simple one. Wreaths that had graced his grave were tossed over the fence and into the woods after the service. Only a dark red and yellow satin ribbon still evidences the wreath's short existence.

In the gray morning I pull weeds from the gravel walk that subdivides the cemetery. The weeds are periodically pulled and a herbicide applied to permanently kill their growth. I'm told but they always grow back. The weeds, of all varieties from clover to crabgrass, are piled into small stacks and then thrown into the woods to decay.

Elvis Presley croons from a tape deck as another person and myself pull weeds among the silent graves.

The afternoon sun finds me alone in the graveyard.

The grass on the plots needs cutting, it is an uneven six inches high. I slowly push a rusted, yellow lawnmower around and around. The grass is too thick and still wet from the morning dew for the grass catcher, so the clippings fly to the right.

I pause as I walk across each marker to read the name and inscriptions. Actually, only one has an inscription, the rest are simply names and dates. "Mary Faith Floyd O'Neale Strickland 1888-1961" or "Leslie H. Walter 1867-1953."

"He brought me out of the miry clay and set my feet upon a rock. Ps. 40:2" Charles Merwyn Johnston, says a copper faded plate soon hidden by grass clippings. The person had died at age 21.

I go around the only two above surface markers, a lily and bushes surround them. A cotton-tail rabbit had earlier run into the island of safety provided by the death monuments.

The lawnmower's blade hits a rut and stalls out. The rut runs toward the new grave, with its five inch bush and L-shaped dirt bare area. The ground must have been soft that day they brought the casket to its resting place.

I avoid walking on the newly seeded, clay area. Perhaps the casket is only six inches below the surface, not six feet. One never knows. The sun beats down on the hard dirt area, as I cut around it. Cockroaches and ants walk cross the place, amid the un-growing grass seed.

I finish the cutting and sit in silence on the mower. Bird chirps and wet leaves above my head combine to give the area the appearance of a tropical rain forest.

The teen arrives to take me back. By the way, the driver asks, did anybody grab my leg? I just smile.

No Retirement for Greenbelt Golden Ager Kenneth Buker

by Wini Milan

A man who loves people—this best characterizes the Rev. Kenneth Buker. The feeling here is mutual; he is known and loved throughout Greenbelt for his efforts to help his fellow man and community. During 11 years of residence here, he has participated in an impressive number of organizations and projects.

Recipient of the first Award of Merit in Scouting issued in Prince Georges County, in 1972, the Rev. Buker will soon receive a 40-year Scouter certificate for his years of efforts in Scouting. At present he is chaplain of the Patuxent district of Boy Scouts, and probably the only elected district chaplain in the United States. The reasons for this man's lengthy service in Scouting are revealed in his statement, "Teaching and directing boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 21 to paths of purposeful living is the field of endeavor which, to me, holds greater attraction than any other."

The Rev. Buker is also now serving as Secretary of the Member Advisory Council of Greenbelt Consumer Services, and is on the Credit Union Board. An active member of the Greenbelt Lions, he has been chaplain of this group for 8 years. He is also chaplain, and a former president, of the Greenbelt Golden Age Club. Efforts on behalf of the senior citizens here include his working to get the present lounge for their use in the Youth Center, and a number of recent appearances before city council to get city sponsorship of construction of a Greenbelt senior citizens building.

"One of our most faithful members, always with the good of the city at heart," says former Park and Recreation Advisory Board Chairman Joe Wilkinson of Rev. Buker's membership on PRAB. His knowledge of people and special interest in needs of youth and senior citizens have proven valuable to PRAB.

Citizens may have noticed the Rev. Buker's presence at city council meetings — he is nearly always there, quietly listening to what is happening in the city he loves. City Manager James Giese characterizes the Rev. Buker as an energetic advocate of safe pedestrian walkways throughout Greenbelt. "For example, he was just in yesterday to notify us that the underpass at Gardenway is full of gravel," commented Giese.

Wider community activities include being a charter and life member of Cheverly American Legion Post 108 and honorary chaplain. He also holds membership in La Societe 40/8 No. 265 of the American Legion. He has also done much work with youth through the Young Men's Christian Association and as a life member of the world's interdenominational youth organization, the International Society of Christian Endeavor. He makes regular trips into the District of Columbia to attend meetings of Knights of the Round Table and of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia.

Recently a new honor has been bestowed upon this active citizen. On June 1 he was presented an Honored Minister's pin at University Christian Church in Hyattsville for his many years of ministry prior to retirement, and the ministry that he has continued to perform in that congregation and here in Greenbelt. Active as an Elder Emeritus at University Christian, he is also a frequent speaker in pulpits of many Greenbelt churches.

From the beginning of his ministry career, the Rev. Buker has been ecumenical, dating back to days when he served through the YMCA and the Federation of Churches. During that time he went regularly to one church in Indianhead, which was reached by a boat from the Navy Yard. The boat returned at 4 p.m., so when he wanted to remain and meet with the young people there, he boat hiked home. Surely some of his rides must have been with rum runners during those prohibition times, but he emerged from each ride unhurt.

As a result of the Rev. Buker's optimism, encouragement and hard work, he was instrumental in the building of two churches during his ministry career. When sent to serve as pastor of Kenilworth Presbyterian Church, he encountered a discouraged group that had tried unsuccessfully to raise money before for a new building. With an offering of $3.25 he began a new building fund which eventually resulted in the needed new church.

While serving 14 years as pastor of Cheverly Christian Church, the Rev. Buker canvassed the neighborhood to enlist support for a community church. That dream became a reality, and is now the Cheverly United Methodist Church. Before retiring and moving to Greenbelt, he served five and a half years as pastor of First Christian Church of Edgemere, Baltimore.

An active ministry career coupled with much participation in community activities would have been busy enough for anyone, but somehow the Rev. Buker also managed to hold a full-time position with the Internal Revenue Service during all the years he studied for and served in the ministry.

Wife Katharine and children Barbara, Kenneth, Jr., and Joyce have been the Rev. Buker's support in all his activities. An extremely likable person herself, Mrs. Buker has lately been active serving as Secretary of the Golden Age Club and has written some inspiring religious poetry at Camp Farthest Out, which both she and the Rev. Buker attend each year.

"Someone everybody would like to know and meet; a wonderful man with a head full of wisdom; outgoing and generous, with a constant concern for those around him"—these are just a few of the many nice things friends and associates of this remarkable man have to say about him. People like the Rev. Ken Buker make Greenbelt an especially nice place to live.

Greenbelt Grab-bag

by Punchin' Judy

Now that the tale of the theft of Dr. Kissinger's trash has been made public, we can tell you about a similar case involving the Greenbelt Grab-Bag.

Looking out of my kitchen window some weeks ago, I saw my trash can being emptied by a sinister looking type very unlike our own clean-cut city employees. Special pick-up? I wondered? I wondered even more when I saw my Hefty disappearing into the trunk of a Mustang II. Curiouser and curiouser, I decided to follow and found myself in an alley behind a building which housed the offices of a newspaper given to writing lurid stories about famous and infamous types. Wondering which category I fell into, I returned the next night and ripped off their garbage. Among the banana peels, brown bags, apple cores, and trivia about Jackie and Onassis, I found the following memorandum:

"Operator No. 006-¾ reporting. Investigated subject's trash and found the following: One left shoe, black, with brown shoelace; 123 peach pits; Washington Times Herald dated June 3, 1942; one Edsel trunk key; eleven copies of Greenbelt News Review with columns clipped; yellow pages of Topeka, Kansas phone book; burnt-out book of matches."

On the bottom of this document was scribbled the following quotation: "This is the trashiest trash I have ever seen. Pure garbage. It has no redeeming social value. I'm quitting this dumb job to get a nice clean position on a presidential campaign committee."

De gustibus non disputandum est, or, loosely translated, there's no accounting for tastes, as the old lady said when she kissed the cow.

Rec. Dept. Needs Photos For National Contest

The City of Greenbelt's Recreation Department has become a finalist in the 1975 National Gold Medal Awards for Excellence in the Field of Recreation and Parks Management. The Gold Medal Awards program honors and focuses national attention on departments which have made superior contributions in meeting the recreational needs of their communities.

The other finalists, in the same category, are Newark, New York; McAllister, Oklahoma and New Brighton, Minnesota. Formal presentation of the awards will take place at the National Recreation and Park Association Congress, Dallas, Texas in October.

To determine a winner, a slide presentation and scrap book is used for a second round of judging. The Youth Center is in need of pictures and/or slides for this final judging. Anyone having taken, within the last year, pictures of recreational activities and special events in Greenbelt, please bring them to the Youth Center Business Office as soon as possible. They will be reviewed and duplicates will be made. All pictures will be returned.

Disposal of Solid Waste Is Major City Problem

by Alfred Skolnik

Disposal of Greenbelt waste is a major problem facing the city and other nearby municipalities. At present Greenbelt is sharing with College Park the use of a landfill on Agricultural Research Center property. The cut-off date for use of this landfill is January 1, 1978.

The city is now exploring several alternatives. The only assured alternative at this point is the Brown station landfill operated by Prince Georges county. This site is about 18 miles from Greenbelt, thus increasing considerably the transportation cost of refuse disposal. In addition, the charge for disposal at the Brown station site is $4 a ton, compared with $3.46 at the Research Center landfill. The city estimates that it collects a total of 23 tons of refuse a day, 6 days a week (19 tons regular trash, 4 tons special pickup).

Transfer Stations

The county is in the process of revising its solid waste plan, by including one or two transfer stations — one to be located in the vicinity of the P.G. marina and the other to be located near Bowie. A transfer station would take refuse from the collection trucks, pack it, and reload it into large semi-trailer trucks which would carry the refuse to the landfill. It would reduce haul time but there would also be an increased disposal cost over that of the Brown station. At present the county has no means of financing the construction of these facilities.

Mt. Trashmore

Another alternative being considered under the new county waste disposal plan is a landfill site in the northern part of the county to be developed in the Mt. Trashmore concept, much as is being built in Virginia Beach. This concept, proposed by county councilman David Hartlove, would involve the construction of a large hill from compacted trash and soil which when fully developed would be utilized for a variety of recreational activities such as skiing, tobogganing, and soap box racing.

Hartlove is asking that a pilot project, predesigned and developed so that citizen use can begin in three to five years, be started on a site convenient to College Park, Greenbelt, Bowie, or Laurel.

Hartlove proposes that the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission negotiate purchase options on potential landfill sites not already owned by the county. Once the sites become available, Hartlove recommends that bids be solicited from private management firms willing and able to create the recreational facilities.

Trash For Energy?

City manager James Giese also reports that the University of Maryland is exploring the feasibility of burning trash to produce steam for heat and electricity. In the Chicago area, refuse sites are being used to generate enough methane gas to heat homes and perhaps run industry at a far lower cost than conventional energy sources.

The University of Maryland utilizes a central heat plant and a centralized electrical distribution. Its buildings are heated by steam, and its energy bill comes to $6,500,000 a year. It is felt that by constructing an incinerator the University can produce sufficient steam for taking care of its heating needs except during peak periods. The University would require 800 tons of trash a day in order to produce the 950 million pounds of steam it requires.

The University has scheduled planning moneys for this project in its 1977 fiscal budget construction funds for 1978. It is expecting to receive financial help from the Bureau of Mines, the Environmental Protection Agency and other sources.

The University would rely substantially upon refuse received at a county transfer station. Giese said it is uncertain as to whether Greenbelt could take refuse directly to the University plant, or would have to go to the transfer station. The former would obviously be a more convenient location to the city.

The University proposal, if feasible, offers the best solution to Greenbelt's waste disposal problems, according to Giese. It promises cheaper disposal costs (The University is talking in terms of charging half the cost of landfilling for the refuse) and the shortest haul distance. At the same time, it utilizes the waste to produce much needed energy and it could reduce the operating cost of the University.

Delegates Push Tax Sharing for Cities

Between sessions of the General Assembly, a special subcommittee of the Maryland House of Delegates has been considering ways of increasing the share that Greenbelt and other municipalities may receive from tax revenue and revenue-sharing programs.

One proposal before the committee by Del. Leo Green would increase the percentage distribution of county piggy-back income receipts that are shared with the municipalities to 40 percent of the local income tax levied by the county and collected from the residents of municipalities.

Another proposal, sponsored by Del. Gerard F. Devlin, would increase the municipal share of Federal revenue-sharing money by specifying that the State piggy-back income tax collected from and shared with the municipal subdivisions be considered part of the municipal tax effort — which is a criterion for receiving revenue-sharing funds.

Devlin explained that revenue-sharing monies are distributed on the basis of a three factor formula which incorporates variables relating to population, per capita income and tax effort. His bill would alter the input of the tax effort portion of the formula in Maryland by reducing the county tax effort and increasing the municipal tax effort. "The net result of this would provide tax relief for Greenbelt tax payers by giving them relief for the municipal services Greenbelt provides which takes the load off the Prince Georges county government," Devlin explained.

In Memory of "Pop"

by Nancy Spong

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Steering Committee has officially renamed the Outstanding Citizens Award as the Joseph Cipriano Outstanding Citizen Award, to be given in memory of the late Mr. Cipriano. "Pop", as known by most Greenbelters, was an active participant in the Labor Day Festival since it began 20 years ago.

During the earlier years of the Festival, he could be seen around the carnival area with what one old-timer described as the "Strong Man" act. Making floats was a hobby he enjoyed and he had entries in the Labor Day Parade annually. Last year he won the second-place trophy for his homemade float consisting of a pony-drawn cart be-decked with flowers. A few years ago the Festival honored Pop by selecting him to be one of the two Parade Marshals in the Labor Day Parade. In later years, Pop could be seen resting in his wheel chair while attending the opening ceremony at the Festival and once again participating through a donation of $100 to the Festival.

Pop, who lived a short distance beyond the Greenbelt city limits, was made an honorary citizen of Greenbelt through a proclamation approved by the city council in November of 1970. In 1973, the council approved another proclamation congratulating him on his 95th birthday.

A native of Italy, Pop came to this area in 1910 and built his own home with the help of his brother. He was a road supervisor for the Lanham District and was instrumental in the planning of the present Greenbelt Road. The Road Association wanted to name the road after him in appreciation of his efforts but Pop declined the offer. However, the present Cipriano Road was named after Pop because of his contribution of land needed to provide a connection between Greenbelt Road and Annapolis Road.

In 1937, when the federal government decided to build the City of Greenbelt as a federal project, Pop was given the position of road supervisor. He retired in 1949 at the age of 73 due to a back disability resulting from a fall.

No finer award could be given in memory of Pop than that of the Outstanding Citizen which is judged on services benefiting the community. He was involved in all aspects of his community and enjoyed his work as well as his recreation. As the Labor Day Festival draws nearer there is a deep feeling of personal loss among local citizens who knew Pop. Not much can be said except, "Pop, we'll miss you."

Where There's Smoke

... your car or your trash might be obstructing your nearest fire hydrant — or fire lane ... and could delay fire fighting operations.

We would appreciate your concern for your neighbors in case we respond to their fire emergency — or even yours.

By the way, there is a law that ... will cost you $5 for illegal parking — plus towing and court costs — near a fire hydrant or in a fire lane.

... prohibits littering or dumping trash by the roadside which could cost you up to $50.

Instead of lugging all your miscellaneous trash, clippings, etc. to the roadside (including some of you who dump it in front of the nearest fire hydrant), why don't you try using your telephone for a special trash pick-up? (474-8004) and please leave it properly packaged in your own yard.

You have the best trash collection service in the country. Thanks to Buddy Attick and his efficient crews.

Try it — you'll like it!

Herlings Visit Sweden

Albert K. Herling, 13M Ridge, a labor journalist, was recently invited to be a guest of the Swedish government. He and his wife, Frances, were in Sweden from May 17 to June 10. Herling is the editor of the Bakery and Confectionary News, the official organ of the Bakery and Confectionary Workers International Union AFL, CIO, CLC (Canadian Labor Congress).

Herling found Sweden to be a "fabulous place" with a viable economy and only 1.6% unemployment. He was very much interested in their work humanization program and their very intelligent urban planning.

While there he met for about an hour with the prime minister (something few journalists have done). Herling asked him about the rise of criticism of the government. The prime minister told him that Sweden has never claimed to be a paradise and is not. He said, "The real burden of government is not so much what we're doing but the things we're not doing but should be doing and those things we're doing that we might not be doing well enough."

Herling saw many important things. The elderly were not isolated but even those living in a building with their own age group were in a group of houses with a variety of age groups. He found pensioners proud of their retirement, regarding their pensions as recognition of their contributions to their country.

Summing up his trip Herling said, "We have a lot to learn!"

Orioles Win In League Series

The 25th Annual Greenbelt Little League World Series was played Aug. 2, and 3 at McDonald's field between the Giants, the American League Champions and the Orioles, the National League Champions. The first game was won by the Orioles, 3 to 2, in spite of Pat Jackman pitching a one-hitter for the Giants. John Wesley was the winning pitcher for the Orioles. The second game was won by the Giants, 11 to 10, in extra innings. Randy Oudeman singled in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh for the Giants. Tod Rockwell was the winning pitcher. Home runs were hit by Tod Rockwell of the Giants and Frank Dorsey of the Orioles. The third and deciding game was won by the Orioles, 17 to 10. Scott Dodson was the winning pitcher. John Wesley hit a two-run homer and Frank Dorsey a grand slam for the Orioles.

Golden Age Club

by Anne McDonald

July was a busy month for members of the Greenbelt Golden Age Club, with their five regular Wednesday meeting dates. A bus-load of 46 members enjoyed a delightful trip to Ocean City on July 8, including a delicious dinner at the George Washington Hotel, with its wide veranda and comfortable rocking chairs for ocean front sightseeing. For the more energetic, there were about four hours of shopping and walking along the Boardwalk. The group arrived back in Greenbelt about 7:30 after a very pleasant trip.

Another important activity for the month was the planning and scheduling of the overnight trip to Williamsburg and Busch Gardens on August 7-8. Arrangements for both trips are under the direction of the Travel and Entertainment chairman, Katie Basinger.

New members are always welcome to attend the Wednesday meetings held at 12:30 at the Youth Center.

CITY NOTES

The city finance office reports that the city ended its fiscal year operations on June 30, 1975 with expenditures of $1,428,859, some $9,241 less than the budgeted amounts. At the same time, however, its realized revenues were some $10,210 short of the amounts anticipated for the fiscal year.

All light pole bases have been poured and the poles installed on tennis courts. Most of the electrical equipment has been installed in the building. It is anticipated that the poles and the equipment will be connected by underground wires this week. A contractor for Pepco installed the underground conduit from the building to the service pole. Pepco will install the service line into the building.

Work has been done on (1) line painting, (2) an air conditioning unit at the city office, and (3) equipment in the pump room at the swimming pool. A sign listing regulations was erected at the entrance to the lake park.

Street cleaning and storm sewer maintenance was accomplished as a result of the past several hard rains. Considerable work was done at Ivy Lane and Ridge Road, removing sand and silt that washed down Ridge.

Bicentennial Activities

by Steve Polaschik

Photographs, Slides and Movies Needed

A more complete pictorial history of Greenbelt, from its birth to the present time, is being developed at the Greenbelt Library with the assistance of the Greenbelt Bicentennial Committee. The completeness of this project depends on the voluntary help of Greenbelters, who have been known to respond generously to previous civic appeals.

If you have any photographs, slides or movies of various people or activities that had a part in Greenbelt's life, please bring them to Betty Allen in the Greenbelt Library. You can call Mrs. Allen on 345-5800.

The materials will be catalogued and made available to present and future residents, guests and scholars interested in knowing just what it is that makes Greenbelt a unique American experience. If you should want to see the materials that are presently available and were shown during the Tugwell Room reception on Greenbelt Day, check with a member of the staff when you visit the Library.

La Leche Meeting

Le Leche League of Greenbelt will hold the last in a series of four monthly meetings on Wed., August 20, at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Regis Milan, 224 Lastner Lane. This month's topic will be "Nutrition and Weaning."

HELP!

My roommate is getting married in September and throwing me out into the heat. If you can share your house or apartment in Greenbelt, then please call Larry at 441-2099 (home) or 927-6767 (work).

GREATER LAUREL HOSPITAL

"SATELLITE"

Greater Laurel Hospital is NOT going to be what the citizens have been led to believe. It will NOT be a GREATER HOSPITAL; it will be a GREATER TAX BURDEN.

It is not going to be a voluntary non-profit community hospital as was promised.

It is going to be a satellite of P. G. County General Hospital, owned and controlled by the County. See record of County Council meeting reported in Laurel News Leader, May 11, 1972.

PARKWAY

FULL-SERVICE HOSPITAL

Parkway WILL BE a voluntary non-profit community hospital. The citizens will DIRECTLY control its policies, not the County. Parkway will not be a satellite. It will provide full medical services. Parkway will be a hospital politicians do not control. Contact your Government Representatives and let them know how you feel.

This ad is sponsored by the Board of Trustees, the Citizens' Advisory Committee, and the Medical Staff of Parkway Hospital
